Venrock’s Anthony Evnin Receives NVCA Lifetime Achievement Award

Life Sciences Pioneer Honored for Exceptional Service

Palo Alto, Calif., April 30, 2009 – Venrock, a premiere venture capital firm originally established as the venture arm of the Rockefeller family, today announced that Anthony (Tony) Evnin, Ph.D. has been recognized by the National Venture Capital Association (NVCA) for his achievements in life sciences venture capital. The ceremony recognizing this year’s Lifetime Achievement in Venture Capital honorees took place at the NVCA 2009 annual meeting in Boston this week.

“Tony helped shape the venture model for the life sciences industry and played a crucial role in not only building some of today’s most impactful healthcare companies but also mentoring a new generation of venture capitalists,” said Ray Rothrock, partner at Venrock and NVCA board member. “What’s more, he has helped make Venrock what it is today and continues to build on our legacy of cultivating meaningful companies that shape our future.”

Evnin joined Venrock in 1974 and established the firm’s healthcare franchise. He helped build companies such as Centocor, IDEC Pharmaceuticals, Infinity Pharmaceuticals, Genetics Institute and IDEXX Laboratories, and over 29 of his investments have been through an IPO during his tenure with the firm. Venrock holds one of the best performing healthcare portfolios in the industry, which includes five of the largest U.S. biotech companies ever founded. With 39 companies in its current healthcare portfolio, Venrock continues to build some of tomorrow’s most promising new companies, such as Anacor, Ikaria and Ironwood.

Lifetime Achievement in Venture Capital Award
The Lifetime Achievement in Venture Capital Award recognizes NVCA members who have dedicated their professional lives to creating and building successful and highly competitive venture firms as well as portfolio companies that have made a significant contribution to economic growth and innovation in the United States. This year the NVCA is honoring five venture capitalists who, through their vision and tenacity, helped to create the life sciences industry. Life sciences companies today represent more than one third of all venture capital investment and have improved and saved the lives of millions of Americans.
